U.S. Department of Homeland Security

QUESTION AND ANSWER SESSION MODERATED BY:

Doris Meissner, Senior Fellow and Director, U.S. Immigration Policy Program, MPI

9:45 A.M. STATE OF PLAY: IMMIGRATION CENTER STAGE

Immigration has played an uncommonly prominent role in elections and on Americans' TV screens since the 2016 presidential campaign. Recent coverage has been non-stop due to family separations and zero-tolerance policies at the border. Heading into a highly contested election season, campaign strategists contend that immigration is the single issue that could move the conservative base and save GOP majorities in Congress. Yet polling shows a larger share of people say immigration is good for the nation than at any point since 2001. What role is immigration likely to play in the November mid-terms? Underneath national debates, the immigration landscape continues to fracture under the pressure of communities embracing different policies of cooperation with federal immigration enforcement, protection of vulnerable immigrants, and more. The federal government is pushing back by threatening to withhold federal dollars and heading to court to challenge state and local policies it views as harmful. Our panel of political and policy experts will assess these and associated political and policy trends.

II:30 A.M. A Systematic Plan to Narrow Humanitarian Protection: A New Era of U.S. Asylum Policy

HART AUDITORIUM

The administration has acted strongly and quickly to restrict the pathways to seek and gain asylum in the United States. In Matter of A-B- the Attorney General overturned a Board of Immigration Appeals case in an attempt to eliminate domestic and gang violence as grounds for granting asylum. Such serious harm is often one of the central reasons why asylum seekers, especially from Central America, flee. Other new policies include criminally prosecuting asylum seekers who cross the border unlawfully for the first time; pushing back families without valid visas who seek asylum at ports of entry (despite laws that allow people to apply for protection at legal crossing points); detaining families, including pregnant women, while they pursue an asylum claim; and imposing case completion quotas on immigration judges so that they issue asylum and other immigration decisions more quickly. Whither asylum? This panel will discuss the legal issues underpinning the asylum system changes and the immediate and longer-term effects of the administration's actions on the U.S. asylum system. They will also consider whether the new policies are in conflict with the international treaties to which the United States is signatory and other international law obligations.

HART AUDITORIUM

Whether at the border or in the interior, the government has been a hardline stance: separating arriving migrant families in a bid to deter future flows from Central America; stepping up pressure on "sanctuary" jurisdictions; increasing focus on denaturalization; and unveiling a public-charge ruling that could deter vast numbers of legal immigrants and their U.S.-citizen dependents from accessing public benefits. What legal and political issues do these policies raise? What is their impact likely to be? And how are immigrant communities and their representatives reacting?

3:20 p.m.	Break	Foyer
3:40 р.м.	Administrative Power: Building an Invisible Wall Around the United States	Hart Auditorium

In its first year and a half, the Trump administration tested the limits of its power to reduce immigration, targeting longstanding humanitarian programs and scrutinizing immigration benefits. These unprecedented actions included deciding to end Temporary Protected Status and Deferred Enforced Departure for nationals from seven countries, attempting to terminate DACA, introducing new limitations on applying for Special Immigrant Juvenile status, releasing several iterations of the much-litigated travel ban, slashing refugee resettlement numbers, tightening visa screening guidelines, and changing H-IB processing. Many of these actions, as well as the way decisions have been implemented, have been challenged in the courts. This panel will examine the legal questions presented in litigation, as well as the consequences of these actions domestically and abroad.

Agenda

Speakers

His Excellency, Paul G. Altidor, Ambassador of Haiti to the United States

Julie Kornfeld, Staff Attorney and former Skadden Fellow, International Refugee Assistance Project

Rebecca K. Peters, Director of Government Affairs, Council for Global Immigration

Keynote Speaker

THE HONORABLE L. FRANCIS CISSNA

DIRECTOR

U.S. CITIZENSHIP AND IMMIGRATION SERVICES

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

L. Francis Cissna was sworn in as Director of U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) on October 8, 2017. From 2005 to 2017, Mr. Cissna served in various capacities within the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS). Most recently, he served as the Director of Immigration Policy within the DHS Office of Policy, during which time he was selected for a detail to the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee, where he worked on immigration-related legislation.

Prior to that, Mr. Cissna served as the Acting Director and Deputy Director of Immigration and Border Security Policy in the DHS Office of Policy. During that time, he led the DHS Comprehensive Immigration Reform "War Room," which coordinated the efforts of DHS' various component agencies with the White House and Congress on a comprehensive immigration reform bill. Before serving at DHS headquarters, he worked in the USCIS Office of the Chief Counsel as an Associate Counsel in the Adjudications Law Division.

Previously, Mr. Cissna was a private immigration attorney with the law firm of Kaufman & Canoles in Richmond, Virginia. He also worked in government as a Foreign Service Officer with the U.S. Department of State, where he served in the immigrant visa section at the U.S. Consulate in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and then as chief of the nonimmigrant visa section at the U.S. Embassy in Stockholm, Sweden. Prior to his government service, Mr. Cissna was an associate attorney at the law firms of Steptoe & Johnson LLP in Washington, DC, and Kirkpatrick & Lockhart LLP in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Cissna received his Juris Doctor from the Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, DC, his master's degree in international affairs from Columbia University, and his bachelor's degrees in physics and political science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Session

STATE OF PLAY: IMMIGRATION CENTER STAGE

SESSION MODERATOR

Doris Meissner

SENIOR FELLOW AND DIRECTOR

U.S. IMMIGRATION POLICY PROGRAM, MPI

@MIGRATION POLICY

Doris Meissner, former Commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), is a Senior Fellow at MPI, where she directs the Institute's U.S. immigration policy work. Her responsibilities focus in particular on the role of immigration in America's future and on administering the nation's immigration laws, systems, and government agencies. Her work and expertise also include immigration and politics, immigration enforcement, border control, cooperation with other countries, and immigration and national security. She has authored and coauthored numerous reports, articles, and op-eds and is frequently quoted in the media. She served as Director of MPI's Independent Task Force on Immigration and America's Future, a bipartisan group of distinguished leaders. The group's report and recommendations address how to harness the advantages of immigration for a 21st century economy and society.

From 1993–2000, she served in the Clinton administration as Commissioner of the INS, then a bureau in the U.S. Department of Justice. Her accomplishments included reforming the nation's asylum system; creating new strategies for managing U.S. borders; improving naturalization and other services for immigrants; shaping new responses to migration and humanitarian emergencies; strengthening cooperation and joint initiatives with Mexico, Canada, and other countries; and managing growth that doubled the agency's personnel and tripled its budget.

She first joined the Justice Department in 1973 as a White House Fellow and Special Assistant to the Attorney General. She served in various senior policy posts until 1981, when she became Acting Commissioner of the INS and then Executive Associate Commissioner, the third-ranking post in the agency. In 1986, she joined the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace as a Senior Associate. Ms. Meissner created the Endowment's Immigration Policy Project, which evolved into the Migration Policy Institute in 2001.

PANELISTS

MARIA CARDONA

DEMOCRATIC POLITICAL STRATEGIST CNN CONTRIBUTOR AND PRINCIPAL, DEWEY SQUARE GROUP @MARIATCARDONA

Maria Cardona is Principal at Dewey Square Group (DSG), leading the Multicultural and Public Affairs practices. A seasoned public policy advocate and political strategist, she has more than two decades of experience in the government, politics, public relations, and community affairs arenas. Ms. Cardona joined DSG in 2005 and founded its Latino Strategies practice, "Latinovations." She is also known for her work as a political commentator and is currently a CNN and CNN en Español political contributor.

While at DSG, she served as a Senior Advisor and Spokesperson to the Hillary Clinton for President Campaign during the 2008 Democratic primary election, working on the campaign's Hispanic outreach team. During the 2008 general election, she was a key surrogate for the Obama for America election campaign, a role she revisited during the 2012 presidential election.

Before joining DSG, she led the New Democrat Network's outreach initiative with Hispanics nationwide as a Senior Vice President. Her government and political experience includes service as Director of Communications for the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) and five years at the U.S. Department of Commerce, first as Deputy Press Secretary and later as Press Secretary. During her time at the Commerce Department, she acted as lead communications strategist for the passage of NAFTA in 1993. She also served as Communications Director for the Democratic National Committee from 2001 to 2003. She serves on the boards of directors of numerous organizations dedicated to Latino issues and youth including Hoops Sagrado, New America Media, Citizenship Counts, PODER PAC, Friends of the National Museum of the American Latino, and the National Hispana Leadership Institute.

Session

BARRY JACKSON

Former Chief of Staff for House Speaker John Boehner And Strategic Advisor, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck

Barry Jackson is a Strategic Advisor at Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck. Mr. Jackson served as Chief of Staff for Speaker John Boehner from 2010 to June 2012, having previously served as Boehner's Chief of Staff from 1991 through 2001. He was also Executive Director of the House Republican Conference during Boehner's tenure as Chairman from 1995 until 1999, as well as Executive Director of the Contract with America. Mr. Jackson served in the White House of President George W. Bush as Assistant to the President for Strategic Initiatives and External Affairs, managing the White House Offices of Political Affairs, Public Liaison, Intergovernmental Affairs, and Strategic Initiatives.

Mr. Jackson directed and helped draft the 1994 Contract with America, a document outlining a national platform that vaulted Republicans into the House majority for the first time in four decades. The New York Times has called Mr. Jackson a "force in Republican politics for more than 20 years," and Forbes named him to its list of "The World's 7 Most Powerful Conservatives."

Mr. Jackson graduated from the University of Iowa's School of Journalism and Mass Communications. He currently serves as a Trustee of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars; a Director of the National Endowment for Democracy; a Director of the Consortium of Catholic Academies; and a member of the Professional Advisory Board of the University of Iowa School of Journalism. He also serves as the Managing Director of The Lindsey Group.

Dara Lind is a Senior Reporter at Vox and has covered immigration in some form for about a decade. A Vox reporter since the site launched in 2014, she has covered everything from federal data on police shootings to the enduring appeal of "moving to Canada" fantasies, while keeping a close eye on the theory and reality behind American immigration policy.

Ms. Lind also hosts Friday episodes of Vox podcast "The Weeds" alongside Matt Yglesias. She was a 2014 Fellow with the John Jay College Center for Media, Crime, and Justice, and a 2017 Reporting Fellow with the University of Southern California Center for Health Journalism.

STAFF WRITER, THE NEW YORKER

@JonathanBlitzer

Jonathan Blitzer is a staff writer at The New Yorker. He won a 2017 National Award for Education Reporting for "American Studies," a story about an underground school for unauthorized immigrants.

He has twice been a finalist for a Livingston Award, and his work has been supported by the Pulitzer Center on Crisis Reporting. His writing and reporting have also appeared in The New York Times, The Atlantic, The Atavist, The Guardian, The Wall Street Forum, Oxford American, and The Nation.

Mr. Blitzer studied English and philosophy at Columbia University, and he is a former Fulbright Scholar (2010–11).

Ur Jaddou is an Adjunct Professor at American University School of Law. She served as Chief Counsel to U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services from July 2014 to January 2017, where she provided legal counsel to the agency and interacted with the DHS General Counsel and other immigration component counsel. She is currently Director of DHS Watch at America's Voice.

She was previously responsible for developing and executing congressional strategy for the U.S. Department of State as Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Bureau of Legislative Affairs. Prior to that, Ms. Jadoou was Chief Counsel to the Subcommittee on Immigration and Border Security in the U.S. House of Representatives and Senior Counsel to Representative Zoe Lofgren.

Ms. Jaddou is a graduate of UCLA Law School and Stanford University.

Session III

BITTA MOSTOFI

Commissioner, Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs,

NEW YORK CITY

@BITTAMOSTOFI

Bitta Mostofi is Commissioner of the New York City Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, a position she was appointed to in May 2018. A longtime immigrant-rights advocate and human-rights organizer, she started her legal career practicing civil-rights law with a particular focus on the discriminatory impact of immigration practices on Muslim and Middle Eastern immigrants.

Shortly thereafter, she joined Safe Horizon and continued her legal practice representing immigrant crime victims, asylees, and others in both affirmative and defensive petitions before the immigration court. She also led Safe Horizon's advocacy work on behalf of immigrant crime victims seeking U visas.

Throughout her career, Commissioner Mostofi has continued her community organizing, increasing awareness of global human-rights injustices and the plight of refugees. Since joining the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs in 2014, she has worked to advance the rights and wellbeing of immigrant New Yorkers and in January 2016 was promoted to Assistant Commissioner. Commissioner Mostofi is a graduate of DePaul University Law School in Chicago.

JAMES F. PETERSON

ATTORNEY, JUDICIAL WATCH

Jim Peterson is a Senior Attorney with Judicial Watch, a conservative, nonpartisan educational foundation that seeks to promote transparency, accountability, and integrity in government and the law.

As a senior member of Judicial Watch's legal team, Mr. Peterson has led many of its lawsuits seeking to compel the enforcement of the nation's immigration law. These include lawsuits challenging various sanctuary policies and other governmental assistance programs that it believes undermine the rule of law. Mr. Peterson personally represented the Arizona State Legislature in its legal defense of the immigration enforcement law known as SB 1070. Prior to joining Judicial Watch in 2002, Mr. Peterson was a member of the litigation practice of a large national law firm in Washington, DC and a major national trade association.

He is a graduate of the George Mason University School of Law and Kent State University. He is a member of the bars of the District of Columbia, Virginia, and numerous federal courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States.

In this role, she represented Haider Al Shawai, one of the first travelers affected by the Trump administration's travel ban.

Ms. Kornfeld also assists with IRAP's strategic international initiatives, identifying and developing pilot programs to build the capacity of new pathways to safety for refugees. Before joining IRAP, Ms. Kornfeld worked for UNHCR in Washington, DC; Lawyers for Human Rights in Johannesburg, South Africa; Human Rights Watch in Washington, DC; and a development NGO in Uganda.

She is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, where she was named a Dean's Public Service Fellow and a Program in Refugee and Asylum Law Fellow, and where she served as the Editor-in-Chief for RefLaw.org, an online scholarly journal focusing on international refugee law.

Session IV

REBECCA K. PETERS

DIRECTOR OF GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS COUNCIL FOR GLOBAL IMMIGRATION @CFGIPETERS

Rebecca Peters is Director of Government Affairs at the Council for Global Immigration (CFGI) in the Washington, DC metro-area. She has been with CFGI for nearly 15 years, helping to advance high-skilled immigration and employment-verification reforms with the U.S. Congress, the White House, and the federal agencies. She has served as Chair of the policy committee of the Compete America coalition and on other coalitions and working groups to educate and advance immigration system efficiencies.

She is a frequent speaker on issues of high-skilled immigration reform and is regarded as an immigration policy expert both inside and outside the Beltway. Mrs. Peters also serves on the Women in Government Relations leadership team as a Vice Chair of its membership committee.

Prior to joining CFGI, she practiced immigration law at a Washington, DC-based law firm and served as an attorney and policy analyst at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Mrs. Peters also spent time representing the government in immigration court proceedings.

She received her JD and MPA from Syracuse University's College of Law and the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs.

ABOUT MIGRATION POLICY INSTITUTE

The Migration Policy Institute is an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit think tank dedicated to analysis of the movement of people worldwide. MPI has offices in Washington, DC and New York, and the Migration Policy Institute Europe is based in Brussels. MPI provides analysis, development, and evaluation of migration and refugee policies at local, national, and international levels. It aims to meet the demand for pragmatic and thoughtful responses to the challenges and opportunities that large-scale migration, whether voluntary or forced, presents to communities and institutions in an increasingly integrated world.

Founded in 2001 by Demetrios G. Papademetriou and Kathleen Newland, MPI grew out of the International Migration Policy Program at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. MPI's current President, Andrew Selee, joined the institute in 2017. MPI is guided by the philosophy that international migration needs active and intelligent management. When such policies are in place and are responsibly administered, they bring benefits to immigrants and their families, communities of origin and destination, and sending and receiving countries.

For more on MPI, visit www.migrationpolicy.org.

ABOUT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY LAW CENTER

Georgetown University Law Center is a global leader in legal education and the preeminent U.S. law school based in the nation's capital. A world-class faculty of celebrated theorists and leading legal practitioners offers students an unmatched breadth and depth of academic opportunities. Second to none in experiential education, the Law Center's numerous clinics are deeply woven into the Washington, DC landscape. More than 20 centers and institutes forge cutting-edge research and policy resources across fields including health, the environment, human rights, technology, national security, and international economics. Georgetown Law equips students to succeed in a rapidly evolving legal environment and to make a profound difference in the world, guided by the school's motto, "Law is but the means, justice is the end."

ABOUT CLINIC

Grounded in Catholic social teaching, the Catholic Legal Immigration Network, Inc. is the largest network of communitybased nonprofit immigration legal programs, with 330 affiliates in 47 states and the District of Columbia. CLINIC's principal services include legal and management training for its affiliates, advocacy for humane immigration policies, representing foreign-born religious workers, and leading several national projects to protect the rights and promote the dignity of immigrants. CLINIC also provides some pro bono representation to detained immigrants and offers public education materials on immigrants' rights and Catholic teaching on migration.

Members of CLINIC's network employ about 2,300 attorneys and government-accredited legal experts who serve the most vulnerable immigrants without regard for age, ethnicity, gender, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, or any other distinguishing characteristics. Through the legal help of the network, hundreds of thousands of immigrants gain hope. Families are reunited. Communities gain new members, seeking to become integrated as U.S. citizens.
